“ I only knew Kay for slightly more than a year, but in that time I felt a friendship with her that will be special forever. Kay was a joyous person to know; always looking on the bright side of life. Last summer we went on a day trip to Plains, GA with a few of our Learning in Retirement friends. Kay was the driver; I was the co-pilot. We had visited the school and church where Jimmy and Roslyn Carter attended, and then passed the home where they currently reside. Kay said "I know we're going to see them." After a visit to President Carter's boyhood home, we called it a day and were leaving the area. Lo and behold, Kay shouts "There they are!" She whipped the SUV around the block and started following The Carters (and their Secret Service men) into a little park area. The guards were really reaching behind their back for weapons and Kay stopped the car. She said to them "Can we get a picture?" President Carter motioned to allow Kay to come forward and was so gracious in allowing me to take their photo. He asked me if I wanted a picture as well, but I was so dumb-struck that I had left my camera in the car. I asked Kay to send me the photo to my phone so I could have it. We laughed most of the way home about that whole incident. I'm so glad to have that moment captured forever. She was just the best person. I will truly miss her.
