“ My funniest memory was one of our last visits just before covid. Carolyn and I had been in Margert's room a couple hours and she hadn't really spoken mostly nodded her head a bit. All of a sudden she pulls her head up looks at me and says as clearly as can be "you talk too much" we burst out laughing and it's been a joking jest ever since. Her astute observations went far beyond my talking to much. She enjoyed watching birds, cardinals in particular and of course Charlie. She shared the joy of these loves with those around. She lived well and still makes me laugh through the memories we share.
